The Nature of Investigation

As an aid to help our clients better understand the nature of the private detective industry, the process by which we work, and the regulations by which we are governed, we have prepared this informational sheet so you have more realistic expectations regarding the work ALLIANCE INVESTIGATIONS will conduct on your behalf.

1. We have no more authority than does a private citizen. We are not police officers. The training, testing, background checks, and certification process we go through to obtain our licenses is meant to set us apart as individuals who are committed to an unbiased professionalism. As such, we are bound to rigid codes of conduct dictated by the State of Washington.
2. We are not magicians. Ours is an industry revolving around detail gathered available information, the understanding of this detail, and the working knowledge of how to follow the trails we uncover. This detailed information is generated through due diligence and knowing where to look. Just as librarians are not geniuses, they are simply trained on where and how to find information.
3. Sometimes the information generated is contrary to what the client hopes to find. We cannot guarantee results. We can only guarantee that the necessary information, documentation, ect. Will be searched for diligently, legally, expediently, and as economically as possible.
4. If surveillance is necessary we feel obligated to inform you if the “real life caveats”. Surveillance, especially moving surveillance, is a hit and miss science. We can perform these observation under agreed upon time and location parameter but cannot promise activity on behalf of the subject. Similarly, moving surveillance carries with it inherent obstacles such as the unpredictable nature of traffic. There is no guarantee that contact with the subject can be maintained as we cannot predict traffic flow, traffic conditions, weather, or other foreseen problems. As in number one above, we have no more authority than an ordinary citizen does. This includes traffic laws.
5. ALLIANCE INVESTIGATIONS AND SECURITY will do everything in our power to reach the goal of obtaining the information you need in a timely and economical fashion and conduct ourselves in a professional and discreet manner while representing you in your case.
